CONFERENCE AND POSTPONE FILING OF JOINT CASE MANAGEMENT STATEMENT

Johnson v. Walmart.com USA LLC, et al.
(Case No. C 09-00553 PJH)
Gannon v. Walmart.com USA LLC, et al.
(Case No. C 09-00554 PJH)
Williams v. Netflix, Inc., et al.
(Case No. C 09-00678 PJH)

Defendants Netflix, Inc., Walmart.com USA LLC, and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. respectfully request that the Court (1) continue the Case Management Conference currently scheduled for April 9, 2009, (2) postpone the parties' Rule 26(f) obligations, and (3) postpone the deadline for filing a Joint Case Management Statement currently due on April 2, 2009.

On March 26, 2009, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation (the "MDL Panel") will hear competing requests to consolidate and transfer these and numerous other related cases to one of at least nine different venues. No one knows, at this time, where the cases will eventually be consolidated or which counsel will be designated lead counsel for the numerous Plaintiffs. Defendants respectfully submit that proceedings in this Court should be adjourned for a brief period of time until the cases have been centralized by the MDL Panel in a single court and lead counsel have been appointed to represent the Plaintiffs in the fifty-six cases that are currently pending. The requested adjournment is well within this Court's discretion, would be limited in scope and duration, and, without prejudice to the Plaintiffs, would save the Court, the parties, and their counsel significant time and resources. An adjournment is the common sense and practical approach under the circumstances.

BACKGROUND

There are presently thirty-three related antitrust cases, filed as putative class actions, pending in this Court against Defendants (collectively, the "California Cases"). Eighteen additional cases, naming the same Defendants and proposing the same putative class, are pending in fifteen other federal district courts throughout the country. (Schedule of Related Cases, Ex A.) There are also five state cases filed in California and Florida that are virtually identical to the various federal cases; of these, the four California state cases have recently been removed by Walmart.com to this Court, and the one Florida state case will soon be removed to the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida.

1 These more than fifty federal court cases are the subject of multiple competing requests to 2 consolidate and transfer currently pending before the MDL Panel. Certain of the Plaintiffs in the 3 California Cases filed one such motion, requesting that all related cases against Defendants be 4 consolidated and transferred to this Court. The Plaintiffs in the eighteen other federal actions, 5 however, have filed separate responses requesting consolidation and transfer to at least eight other
6 different venues – San Juan, PR; East St. Louis, IL; Baton Rouge, LA; Charleston, WV;
7 Birmingham, AL; Brooklyn, NY; Chicago, IL; and Cleveland, OH. The competing MDL positions
8 are scheduled to be heard on March 26, 2009. Defendants Netflix and Wal-Mart both support
9 centralization in this Court, and have so advised the MDL Panel. But no one knows where the cases 10 ultimately will be consolidated.

11 On February 2, 2009, this Court issued a routine order scheduling a Case Management
12 Conference for April 9, 2009, and setting various deadlines for Rule 26(f) conferences and the filing 13 of a Joint Case Management Statement by April 2, 2009. Notwithstanding the uncertainty as to 14 where these cases will ultimately wind up, some of the Plaintiffs' counsel in the California Cases are 15 insisting that these proceedings continue as scheduled and have declined to consent to a brief
16 adjournment until after the MDL Panel has ruled.

17 Proceeding with these pretrial matters in the subset of cases pending in this Court in advance 18 of the MDL ruling will potentially waste the time and resources of the Court, the parties, and their 19 counsel. If the Court were to proceed with case management conferences and statements in the 20 California Cases, the Plaintiffs in the other actions would request similar activity in their cases in 21 order to prevent the appearance before the MDL Panel that the California Cases are progressing more 22 quickly than the other actions, a factor that would favor consolidation and transfer to this Court. The 23 burden then would fall entirely on Defendants to retain multiple sets of counsel and endeavor to 24 avoid conflicting case management orders across multiple jurisdictions over these upcoming weeks.
25 Because the complaints that have been filed to date are likely to be replaced by a single amended 26 consolidated complaint, with the equal likelihood of a single discovery schedule, it would be wasteful
27 and inefficient to require case management conferences, Rule 26(f) meetings, and joint case 28 management statements in multiple jurisdictions before the MDL ruling. A short adjournment of

1 these matters, lasting only until resolution of the MDL motions to consolidate and transfer, will 2 prevent this waste without prejudice to any party.¹

3 4 ARGUMENT

5 This Court possesses the inherent power to adjourn proceedings on its docket. Landis v.
6 North American Co., 299 U.S. 248, 254 (1936). This power is “incidental to the power inherent in 7 every court to control the disposition of the causes on its docket with economy of time and effort for 8 itself, for counsel, and for litigants.” Id. There are at least two ways in which an adjournment 9 pending the outcome of motions to consolidate and transfer before the MDL Panel promotes judicial 10 economy:

11 First, if this case is consolidated with the other cases . . . and this Court is 12 not assigned by the MDL Panel to preside over the consolidated
13 litigation, this Court will have needlessly expended its energies 14 familiarizing itself with the intricacies of a case that would be heard by 15 another judge. And second, any efforts on behalf of this Court concerning case management will most likely have to be replicated by the judge that is assigned to handle the consolidated litigation if the MDL Panel does not consolidate the . . . cases in this Court.

16 Rivers v. Walt Disney Co., 980 F. Supp. 1358, 1361 (C.D. Cal. 1997). The same is true here. The 17 MDL Panel may transfer all the cases to this Court as the California Cases Plaintiffs have requested, 18 or they could be transferred to any one of at least nine other venues throughout the country to which 19 other Plaintiffs have requested transfer, e.g., San Juan, PR, Brooklyn, NY, Baton Rouge, LA, 20 Charleston, WV, or Birmingham, AL.

21 These savings in judicial resources have prompted a “majority of courts [to] conclude[] that it 22 is often appropriate to adjourn preliminary pretrial proceedings while a motion to transfer and

24 ¹ Without commenting now on the numerous inaccuracies in the various complaints that have been 25 filed, it is undisputed that the underlying events have been matters of public record for almost four 26 full years. Although all parties desire an expeditious resolution of this litigation, there is no
27 emergency that would counsel against the short adjournment Defendants seek. One might suspect 28 that the Plaintiffs’ counsel opposed to this adjournment are motivated, at least in part, by a desire to improve their positioning before the MDL Panel and to advance their own cause in the positioning for the lead counsel role in the consolidated cases after the MDL Panel has ruled.

1 consolidate is pending with the MDL Panel.” Id. at 1362 (citing American Seafood v. Magnolia
2 Processing, Inc., No. 92-1030, 1992 WL 102762, at *6 (E.D. Penn. May 7, 1992)). That majority
3 includes several courts in the Ninth Circuit. *See, e.g., Lyman v. Asbestos Defendants (B*P)*, No. C
4 07-4240, 2007 WL 2972926, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 10, 2007) (granting motion to stay pretrial 5 proceedings where it “will likely preserve judicial resources by preventing a duplication of 6 proceedings before this Court and the MDL court, and because the Plaintiffs have not persuasively
7 identified any hardship resulting from such a stay”); Gonzalez v. Merck & Co., No. CV-07-3034-
8 LRS., 2007 WL 2220286, at *2 (E.D. Wash. Aug. 2, 2007) (where MDL decision was pending, court 9 “agree[d] with Defendant Merck and well settled case law that dictates a stay should be granted to 10 promote judicial economy”); Mailblocks, Inc. v. Spam Arrest, LLC, No. CV 03-0077, 2003 WL
11 22319080 at *2-*3 (W.D. Wash. June 9, 2003) (“[I]tigation should be stayed to permit the MDL
12 Panel to decide a motion to consolidate” where the stay would “achieve gains in judicial economy 13 and consistency that outweigh the prejudice the parties would suffer from the delay” and stay could 14 be lifted “as soon as the MDL Panel decides the motion to consolidate”).

15 There are no other pressing motions that this Court need decide, and any adjournment will be 16 relatively short given the proximity of the MDL hearing set for March 26. An adjournment will not 17 prejudice the Plaintiffs in the California Cases in these proceedings, or vis-à-vis Plaintiffs in related 18 cases against Defendants pending in the many other jurisdictions. None of the courts in the other 19 cases has issued a case management order. However, if this Court were to proceed with preliminary 20 case management now, the Plaintiffs in the non-California Cases would likely request similar 21 activities in order to create a level playing field before the MDL Panel. The inevitable result is that 22 Defendants would be forced to retain counsel and to respond in each of the eight other jurisdictions
23 that are candidates for centralization. The courts in those jurisdictions will waste judicial resources 24 engaging in case management activity that may be mooted by the MDL Panel’s ruling. This is 25 precisely the waste, burden and inefficiency the MDL procedure is designed to avoid and prevent.
26 See MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (FOURTH) § 22.35 (“A stay pending the Panel’s decision can 27 increase efficiency and consistency, particularly when the transferor court believes that a transfer 28 order is likely and when pending motions raise issues likely to be raised in other cases as well.”).

1 CONCLUSION

2 Common sense suggests a brief adjournment of the Case Management Conference and related 3 proceedings until the MDL Panel has ruled. Defendants respectfully request the Court grant their 4 motion for administrative relief.
